

Congress Supported the Banks They Failed the People

By J. McGuire

Maybe, we should resurrect George Washington, Ben Franklin and the others and reelect them to office. Better than what we have now. At least they fought for this country's freedom from the banks.

In history past, Rome, England as example, financed their countries with the faith of the people and flourished. Banks regained control of the money and all suffered.

The United States in an effort to free itself from the tyranny of England issued its own money based on the faith of the people and won its independence. Was it really England that America was fighting, or was it that the money changers were losing their power and control?

Does America need the banks, NO.?
Does the world need the banks, NO?

Each government in the world could issue their own currency based on the faith of their own people and with reciprocity of the other countries in the world, the banks would not be needed. Wealth then would be spread around amongst the many and the few of the banks would lose their power and control.

So long as there is greed, my duck is bigger than your duck, the banks will use all the power and money to buy, intimidate, and lie to stay in power and emit control.

This author has exposed in many writings the greatest fraud in history, the money value of this fraud exceeds the global worth of the people, the governments of the world have the opportunity to regain control from the banks, but are the leaders wise enough or are they so blinded by greed and power.

The governments of the world failure to act now will certainly mean servitude for the people for many years to come.

Many say America needs to be back on the Gold Standard, this would be a great mistake.

The only standard, "Faith of the People"
The people still have faith in America.
They have little faith in the people that are leading it.
"as long as this country trusts in God, it will prevail"

When will Congress and the other elected officials listen to the will of the people and cease listening to the lies of the banks, maybe after they are voted out of office?

Vote – Vote – Vote
It's Faith, "Ducky", Faith
