

Idiom's Teapot

As reported in an article by the Wall Street Journal¹, Mr. Dimon has said the 2 billion dollar ($2,000,000,000) trading error was a “tempest in a teapot.” Okay Giz, how many teapots are cooking and cooking what?

The author was really going to write about the GOP passing the bill to suspend the feeding of the elderly and allowing children to be hungry to avoid spending cuts in the military, The author will stipulate (agree) that sometimes one concentrates on what one wants to only address. The bill did include other areas but the author was so outraged by the possibility of Meals on Wheels and the Children Food program being eliminated that the other areas seemed less important.

It is known, war is inherently dangerous, people are crippled, maimed and die and no leader wishes to see any harm come to their troops under their command. However, if money is directed from the feeding of people to fund weapons to eliminate a warrior's death and the commander in chief is oblivious, one must ask, how many lives of innocent is worth the price? If the commander in chief veto's this current bill, kudos.

This author has repeatedly stated, governments in general are just in nature, it is those few within that make it appear that governments are corrupt.

For the record, this author today in his home town elections did vote, the price for voting was the author had to ride his bicycle home in the rain. Was the price worth it, you bet your vote.

People, elections are a given right, exercise that right and vote with wisdom.

The choice of vote is one of the choices, who, another choice.

Choose Wisely

1

http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052702304543904577398173827749672.html?mod=WSJ_hpp_MIDDLE_Video_Top