

Slavery or Servitude

Freedom Is Not Free

By James McGuire

Common sense teaches that there is no pot of gold at the end of a rainbow, turnips and rhubarbs do not grow from marshmallow seeds, and leprechauns exist in a world of fantasy. Science and mathematics do not provide the mechanics needed to create money from turnip gas and helium balloons are not made with onions.

Charles A. Lindbergh, Sr. in a warning to Americans revealed the 1892 Bankers' Manifesto before Congress. In part:

"History repeats itself in regular cycles. This truth is well known among our principal men who are engaged in forming an imperialism of the world..."

The courts must be called to our aid, debts must be collected, bonds and mortgages foreclosed as rapidly as possible...

When through the process of the law, the common people have lost their homes, they will be more tractable and easily governed through the influence of the strong arm of the government applied to a central power of imperial wealth under the control of the leading financiers. People without homes will not quarrel with their leaders.

By thus dividing voters, we can get them to expand their energies in fighting over questions of no importance to us, except as teachers to the common herd. Thus, by discrete action, we can secure all that has been so generously planned and successfully accomplished."

Evading laws to achieve a profit is not only an issue for the people but for governments, courts and law enforcement of all countries. Not only do the rating agencies rate people, they rate the countries of the world. No fiction here, banks in conjunction with the rating agencies (imperialism?) determine the rate of interest on borrowed money for countries as well as the people. What better way to guarantee a government will remain in servitude; find a way to deprive the government of entitled fees and have the government borrow money that they should not have had to borrow if the fees had been paid. Does a government's ignorance render that government a deadbeat county? "United States of America" -- a deadbeat country... Oopsie! Consider the "MERS" syndrome in America, MERS, being a creation of the banks. Was MERS a planned method to deprive the government of its fees to keep the United States in servitude to the banks? This governmental servitude places additional financial burden upon the people and most likely would guarantee the people to be in double dip servitude, to the banks and to the government.

While the people and the countries of the world may not be in slavery, so long as ignorance and disbelief remains, servitude is a guaranteed!
