

Thou Shalt Not Steal

Words Cast in Stone?

Most believe, seeing is proof. “One of the stone tablets which were inscribed with the Ten Commandments may have been found...”¹ Tangible proof is lacking that the tablets exist but the principle of the words are cast in the souls of most of mankind. Similarly, “Thou shalt not bear false witness” are noted to also have been inscribed upon the tablets.

In today’s financial marmalade, these words have an explicit meaning: “Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.” (Luke 23:34) One needs to only look at the complexity and the magnitude of laws that apply in the securitization of mortgages which resulted in processes becoming compartmentalized resulting in specialization in specific areas of law or actions. Currently, the world has concentrated eyesight upon the illegal acts committed by Robo-Signers. There is no doubting that Robo-Signers violated laws of the lands but proof is lacking that the Robo-Signers violated God’s law.

Proper attention needs to be directed to those that taught the cubicle action people who knew only what they were taught but did not know what they were doing, are did they?

“Thou shalt not bear false witness”, would that also mean, do not lie? Seems as that would be tough for a bank’s counsel, for if truth was told, bank’s counsel might be faced with losing their Friday paycheck. With that said, we take a squint of those millions who operate in the market arena for profit, is their Friday paycheck at risk?

The Question

Are the actions of the Central Banks, Government Individuals and Banking’s analyst and economics, etc., acting for the sake of humanity, assurance of a Friday Paycheck or to preserve mankind’s servitude to the Power’s? I would choose 2 and 3 by not knowing, or do they?
